Direction (Q. Nos. 1 to 10): Read the following two passages and answer the questions that follow each passage. Your answer to these questions should be based on the passages only.

Passage - I

I was sitting next to Missy in my ninth-grade world history class when Mrs. Bartlett announced a new project. In groups, we were to create a newspaper around the culture we were studying.

On a piece of paper, we wrote the names of three friends we wanted in our group. After collecting all the requests, Mrs. B informed us that she would take into consideration the names we chose and would let us know the results the next day. I had no doubt I would get the group of my choice. There were only a handful of sociably decent people in the class, and Missy was one of them. I knew we had chosen each other.

The next day, I anxiously awaited the class. After the bell rang, Missy and I stopped talking as Mrs. B called for our attention. She started to call out names. When she reached group three, Missy's name was called. So I'm in group three, I thought. The second, third and fourth members of the group were called. My name was not included. There had to be some mistake!

Then I heard it. The last group: "Mauro, Juliette, Rachel, Karina." I could feel the tears well in my eyes. How could that went down to her ankles, and the other girl who wore weird clothes. Oh, how badly I wanted to be with my friends.

I fought back tears as I walked up to Mrs. B. She looked at me and knew what I was there for. I was determined to convince her I should be in the "good" group. "Why...?" I started.

She gently placed a hand on my shoulder. "I know what you want, Karina," she said, "but your group needs you. I need you to help them get a passing grade on this assignment. Only you can help them."

I was stunned. I was humbled. I was amazed. She had seen something in me I hadn't seen.

"Will you help them?" she asked.

I stood straighter. "Yes," I replied. I could't believe it came out of my mouth, but it did.

That committed.

There are two ancient evils that science, unwisely used, may intensify: they are tyranny and war. But I am concerned now rather with pleasant possibilities than with unpleasant ones.

Science can confer two kinds of benefits: It can diminish bad things and it can increase good things. Let us begin with the former.

Science can abolish poverty and excessive hours of labour. In the earliest human communities, before agriculture, each human individual required two or

Subsistence was precarious and death from starvation must have been frequent.

At that stage, men had the same mixture of misery and carefree enjoyment as still makes up the lives of others animals.

Agriculture was a technical advance of the same kind of importance as attaches to modern machine industry. The way that agriculture was used is an awful warning to our age. It introduced slavery and serfdom, human sacrifice, absolute monarchy and large wars. Instead of raising the standard of life, except for a tiny governing minority, it merely increased the population. On the whole, it probably increased the sum of human misery. It is not possible that industrialism may take the same course.

- 71. Which of the following is NOT the main focus of the article?

 - (B) Pleasant possibilities of science

- (C) The ability of science to diminish bad things
- (D) The ability of science to increase good things

 - (A) Pre-agriculture days
 - (B) If they adopt agricultural economy
 - (C). Use the benefits of science wisely
 - (D) None of the above

 - (A) The condition of human beings has been reduced to the status of animals during the modern age of machine industry
 - (B) Industrialism introduces slavery
 - (C) Agriculture was a technical advancement upon industrialism
 - (D) None of the above

- 74. Agrarian economy increased the sum of human misery because:
 - (A) You have to indulge in the practice of human sacrifice to increase the output
 - (B) It was not used wisely
 - (C) It resulted in population explosion
 - (D) None of the above
- 75. Which of the following is NOT mentioned in the article?
 - (A) Human beings enjoyed the same kind of pleasures and suffered the same kind of misery like the animals during pre-agrarian economy
 - (B) Agriculture raised the standard of the life for some human beings
 - (C) Agrarian economy is more scientifically advanced than pre-agrarian economy

(D) Industrialism will lessen human misery because it is accompanied by democratic form of government

Direction (Q. Nos. 76 to 80): Read the following passage and answer the questions given below.

Hamessing the immune system to fight cancer, long a medical dream, is becoming a reality. Remarkable stories of tumours melting away and terminal illness going into remissions that last years—backed by solid data—have led to an explosion of interest and billions of dollars of investments in the rapidly growing field of immunotherapy. Pharmaceutical firms, philanthropists and the U. S. government's "cancer moonshot" program are pouring money into developing treatments. Medical conferences on the topics are packed.

Hundreds of clinical trials involving immunotherapy, alone or combined with other treatments, are underway for nearly every type of cancer.

The immune system — a network of cells, tissues and biochemicals they secrete - defends the body against viruses, bacteria and other invaders. But cancer often finds ways to hide from the immune system or blocks its ability to fight. Immunotherapy tries to help the immune system to recognize cancer as a threat, and attack it. A widely used type of immunotherapy involves drugs that free immune cells to fight cancer by blocking a mechanism - called a checkpoint - that cancer uses to shut down the immune system. These drugs, called checkpoint inhibitors, have been approved by the Food and Drug Administration to treat advanced melanoma, Hodgkin lymphoma and cancers of the lung, kidney and bladder. More drugs in this class are in the pipeline. Patients are clamouring for checkpoint drugs, including one, Keytruda, which, combined with surgery and radiation, has left the former President with no sign of recurrence even though melanoma had spread to his liver and brain.

- 76. Which of the following statements is true?
 - (A) Cancer is a very dangerous disease because it does not spare even a very powerful person like Jimmy Carter, the former President of the United States
 - (B) There is improvement in cancer treatment because billions of dollars are being poured into research
 - (C) If melanoma spreads to liver and brain, there will be no recurrence of cancer
 - (D) None of the above

- 77. Checkpoint drugs have become very popular because :
 - (A) They nullify cancer's attempt to shut down the immune system
 - (B) You do not have to suffer the pain of surgery and radiation during treatment
 - (C) Food and Drug Administration has approved its use
 - (D) None of the above

78. Keytruda is:

- (A) A particular type of disease
 with which Jimmy Carter was suffering from
- (B) The name of a drug that is used to treat cancer patients
 - (C) Another version of Hodgkin lymphoma
 - (D) None of the above

79. Immunotherapy:

- (A) Marks the end of human dependence on drugs during cancer treatment
- (B) Augments the ability of human immune system to fight cancer cells
- (C) Creates 'checkpoints' against cancer cells
- (D) None of the above

80. 'Cancer moonshot' program:

- (A) Is a philanthropic initiative by US government
- (B) Is sponsored by pharmaceutical firms to hold medical conferences on immunotherapy
- (C) Channelizes resources into research on the development of cancer treatment through immunotherapy
- (D) None of the above

Direction (Q. Nos. 31 to 35): Read the following passage and answer the given questions.

There are two ancient evils that science, unwisely used, may intensify: they are tyranny and war. But I am concerned now rather with pleasant possibilities than with unpleasant ones.

Science can confer two kinds of benefits: It can diminish bad things and it can increase good things. Let us begin with the former.

Science can abolish poverty and excessive hours of labour. In the earliest human communities, before agriculture, each human individual required two or more square miles to sustain life. Subsistence was precarious and death from starvation must have been frequent. At that stage, men had the same mixture of misery and carefree enjoyment as still makes up the lives of others animals.

Agriculture was a technical advance of the same kind of importance as attaches to modern machine industry. The way that agriculture was used is an awful warning to our age. It introduced slavery and serfdom, human sacrifice, absolute monarchy and large wars. Instead of raising the standard of life, except for a tiny governing minority, it merely increased the population. On the whole, it probably increased the sum of human misery. It is not possible that industrialism may take the same course.

- 31. Which of the following is NOT the main focus of the article?
 - (A) Tyranny and war
 - (B) Pleasant possibilities of science
 - (C) The ability of science to diminish bad things
 - (D) The ability of science to increase good things

 - (A) Pre-agriculture days

- (B) If they adopt agricultural economy
- (C) Use the benefits of science wisely
- (D) None of the above
- 33. Which of the following statements is true?
 - (A) The condition of human beings has been reduced to the status of animals during the modern age of machine industry
 - (B) Industrialism introduces slavery
 - (C) Agriculture was a technical advancement upon industrialism
 - (D) None of the above
- 34. Agrarian economy increased the sum of human misery because :
 - (A) You have to indulge in the practice of human sacrifice to increase the output
 - (B) It was not used wisely
 - (C) It resulted in population explosion
 - (D) None of the above

KB - 2B/26

- 35. Which of the following is NOT mentioned in the article?
 - (A) Human beings enjoyed the same kind of pleasures and suffered the same kind of misery like the animals during pre-agrarian economy
- of the life for some human beings
 - (C) Agrarian economy is more scientifically advanced than pre-agrarian economy
 - (D) Industrialism will lessen human misery because it is accompanied by democratic form of government

Direction (Q. Nos. 36 to 40): Read the following passage and answer the questions given below.

Harnessing the immune system to fight cancer, long a medical dream, is becoming a reality. Remarkable stories of tumours melting away and terminal illness going into remissions that last years — backed by solid data — have led to an explosion of interest and billions of dollars of investments in the rapidly growing field of immunotherapy. Pharmaceutical firms, philanthropists and the U. S. government's "cancer moonshot" program are pouring money into developing treatments. Medical conferences on the topics are packed. Hundreds of clinical trials involving immunotherapy, alone or combined with other treatments, are underway for nearly every type of cancer.

The immune system — a network of cells, tissues and biochemicals they secrete — defends the body against viruses, bacteria and other invaders. But cancer often finds ways to hide from the immune system or blocks its ability to fight. Immunotherapy tries to help the immune system to recognize cancer as a threat, and attack it. A widely used type of immunotherapy involves drugs that free immune cells to fight cancer by blocking a mechanism — called a checkpoint — that cancer uses to shut down the immune system. These drugs, called checkpoint inhibitors, have been approved by the Food and Drug Administration to treat advanced melanoma, Hodgkin lymphoma and cancers of the lung, kidney and bladder. More drugs in this class are in the pipeline. Patients are clamouring for checkpoint drugs, including one, Keytruda, known to many as "that Jimmy Carter drug" which, combined with surgery and radiation, has left the former President with no sign of recurrence even though melanoma had spread to his liver and brain.

- 36. Which of the following statements is true?
 - (A) Cancer is a very dangerous disease because it does not spare even a very powerful person like Jimmy Carter, the former President of the United States
 - (B) There is improvement in cancer treatment because billions of dollars are being poured into research

- (C) If melanoma spreads to liver and brain, there will be no recurrence of cancer
- (D) None of the above
- 37. Checkpoint drugs have become very popular because:
 - (A) They nullify cancer's attempt to shut down the immune system
 - (B) You do not have to suffer the pain of surgery and radiation during treatment
 - (C) Food and Drug Administration has approved its use *
 - (D) None of the above
- 38. Keytruda is:
 - (A) A particular type of disease
 with which Jimmy Carter was suffering from
 - (B) The name of a drug that is used to treat cancer patients
 - (C) Another version of Hodgkin lymphoma
 - (D) None of the above

- 39. Immunotherapy:
 - (A) Marks the end of human dependence on drugs during cancer treatment
 - (B) Augments the ability of human immune system to fight cancer cells
 - (C) Creates 'checkpoints' against cancer cells
 - (D) None of the above
- (40) 'Cancer moonshot' program:
 - (A) Is a philanthropic initiative by US government
 - (B) Is sponsored by pharmaceutical firms to hold medical conferences on immunotherapy
 - (C) Channelizes resources into research on the development of cancer treatment through immunotherapy
 - (D) None of the above

Passage - I

I was sitting next to Missy in my ninth-grade world history class when Mrs. Bartlett announced a new project. In groups, we were to create a newspaper around the culture we were studying.

On a piece of paper, we wrote the names of three friends we wanted in our group. After collecting all the requests, Mrs. B informed us that she would take into consideration the names we chose and would let us know the results the next day. I had no doubt I would get the group of my choice. There were only a handful of sociably decent people in the class, and Missy was one of them. I knew we had chosen each other.

The next day, I anxiously awaited the class.

After the bell rang, Missy and I stopped talking as Mrs. B called for our attention.

She started to call out names. When she reached group three, Missy's name was called. So I'm in group three, I thought. The second, third and fourth members of the group were called. My name was not included. There had to be some mistake!

Then I heard it. The last group: "Mauro, Juliette, Rachel, Karina." I could feel the tears well in my eyes. How could that went down to her ankles, and the other girl who wore weird clothes. Oh, how badly I wanted to be with my friends.

(Turn over)

I fought back tears as I walked up to Mrs. B. She looked at me and knew what I was there for. I was determined to convince her I should be in the "good" group. "Why...?" I started.

She gently placed a hand on my shoulder.
"I know what you want, Karina," she said,
"but your group needs you. I need you to help them get a passing grade on this assignment. Only you can help them."

I was stunned. I was humbled. I was amazed. She had seen something in me I hadn't seen.

"Will you help them?" she asked.

I stood straighter. "Yes," I replied. I could't believe it came out of my mouth, but it did. I had committed.

Passage - II

One miserable rainy night, a man named Mark decided to end his life. In his midfifties, Mark had never been married, had never experienced the joy of having children or spending holidays with his family. Both his parents had been dead for seven years. He had a sister but had lost contact with her. He held a menial job that left him unfulfilled. Wet and unhappy, he walked the streets, feeling as if there was nobody in the entire world that cared if he lived or died.

On that same soggy night, I was sitting in my room watching the rain hit my window. I was six years old, and my life revolved around my Star Wars action figure collection. I was dreaming of the day when I'd have earned enough money to add Darth Vader to my new collector's case. To help me make money, my father paid me to jog with him. Everyday, at seven o'clock, we jogged together.

And everyday, I was fifty cents closer to getting Darth Vader.

When I heard the doorbell ring, I jumped from my chair and raced out of my room to the top of the steps. My mother was already at the door.

Opening it, she found herself face-to-face with a very disheveled-looking man with tears streaming down his face. My mother, overcome by pity, invited the man inside, and he sat with my parents in our living room.

Curious, I snuck downstairs so that I could get a better look. I couldn't understand what they were saying, but the sight of the rumpled man, holding his head in his hands and crying, made my chest ache. I raced back upstairs to my room and stuck my hand into my money jar, Pulling out the Kennedy half-dollar I had earned that day, I ran back downstairs.

When I reached the door of the living room, I walked right in. The three adults looked at me in surprise as I quickly made my way over to the stranger. I put the half-dollar in his hand and told him that I wanted him to have it. Then I gave him a hug and turned and ran as fast as I could out of the room and back up the stairs. I felt embarrassed but happy.

Downstairs, Mark sat quietly with his head bowed. Tears streamed down his face as he tightly clutched that coin. Finally looking up at my parents, he said, "It's just that I thought nobody cared. For the last twenty years, I have been so alone. That was the first hug I have gotten in — I don't know how long. It's hard to believe that somebody cares.

Direction (Q. Nos. 51 to 55): Read the following passage and answer the given questions.

There are two ancient evils that science, unwisely used, may intensify: they are tyranny and war. But I am concerned now rather with pleasant possibilities than with unpleasant ones.

Science can confer two kinds of benefits: It can diminish bad things and it can increase good things. Let us begin with the former.

Science can abolish poverty and excessive hours of labour. In the earliest human communities, before agriculture, each human individual required two or more square miles to sustain life. Subsistence was precarious and death from starvation must have been frequent. At that stage, men had the same mixture of misery and carefree enjoyment as still makes up the lives of others animals.

Agriculture was a technical advance of the same kind of importance as attaches to modern machine industry. The way that agriculture was used is an awful warning to our age. It introduced slavery and serfdom, human sacrifice, absolute monarchy and large wars. Instead of raising the standard of life, except for a tiny governing minority, it merely increased the population. On the whole, it probably increased the sum of human misery. It is not possible that industrialism may take the same course.

- 51. Which of the following is NOT the main focus of the article?

 - (B) Pleasant possibilities of science
 - (C) The ability of science to diminish bad things
 - (D) The ability of science to increase good things

- 53. Which of the following statements is true?
 - (A) The condition of human beings
 has been reduced to the status
 of animals during the modern
 age of machine industry
 - (B) Industrialism introduces slavery
 - Agriculture was a technical advancement upon industrialism
 - (D) None of the above
- 54. Agrarian economy increased the sum of human misery because:
 - (A) You have to indulge in the practice of human sacrifice to increase the output

(B) It was not used wisely

It resulted in population explosion

- (D) None of the above
- 55. Which of the following is NOT mentioned in the article?
 - (A) Human beings enjoyed the same kind of pleasures and suffered the same kind of misery like the animals during pre-agrarian economy
 - (B) Agriculture raised the standard of the life for some human beings
 - (C) Agrarian economy is more scientifically advanced than pre-agrarian economy

Industrialism will lessen human misery because it is accompanied by democratic form of government

Direction (Q. Nos. 56 to 60): Read the following passage and answer the questions given below.

Harnessing the immune system to fight cancer, long a medical dream, is becoming a reality. Remarkable stories of tumours melting away and terminal illness going into remissions that last years backed by solid data - have led to an explosion of interest and billions of dollars of investments in the rapidly growing field of immunotherapy. Pharmaceutical firms, philanthropists and the U. S. government's "cancer moonshot" program are pouring money into developing treatments. Medical conferences on the topics are packed. Hundreds of clinical trials involving immunotherapy, alone or combined with other treatments, are underway for nearly every type of cancer.

The immune system — a network of cells, tissues and biochemicals they secrete — defends the body against viruses, bacteria and other invaders. But cancer often finds ways to hide from the immune system or blocks its ability to fight. Immunotherapy tries to help the immune system to recognize cancer as a threat, and attack it. A widely used type of immunotherapy involves drugs that free immune cells to fight cancer by blocking a mechanism — called a checkpoint — that cancer uses to shut down the immune system. These drugs, called checkpoint inhibitors, have been approved by the Food and Drug Administration to treat advanced melanoma, Hodgkin lymphoma and cancers of the lung, kidney and bladder. More drugs in this class are in the pipeline. Patients are clamouring for checkpoint drugs, including one, Keytruda, known to many as "that Jimmy Carter drug" which, combined with surgery and radiation, has left the former President with no sign of recurrence even though melanoma had spread to his liver and brain.

- 56. Which of the following statements is true?
 - (A) Cancer is a very dangerous disease because it does not spare even a very powerful person like Jimmy Carter, the former President of the United States

Direction (Q. Nos. 61 to 70): Read the following two passages and answer the questions that follow each passage. Your answer to these questions should be based on the passages only.

Passage - I

I was sitting next to Missy in my ninth-grade world history class when Mrs. Bartlett announced a new project. In groups, we were to create a newspaper around the culture we were studying.

On a piece of paper, we wrote the names of three friends we wanted in our group. After collecting all the requests, Mrs. B informed us that she would take into consideration the names we chose and would let us know the results the next day. I had no doubt I would get the group of my choice. There were only a handful of sociably decent people in the class, and

Missy was one of them. I knew we had chosen each other.

The next day, I anxiously awaited the class. After the bell rang, Missy and I stopped talking as Mrs. B called for our attention. She started to call out names. When she reached group three, Missy's name was called. So I'm in group three, I thought. The second, third and fourth members of the group were called. My name was not included. There had to be some mistake!

Then I heard it. The last group: "Mauro, Juliette, Rachel, Karina." I could feel the tears well in my eyes. How could that went down to her ankles, and the other girl who wore weird clothes. Oh, how badly I wanted to be with my friends.

I fought back tears as I walked up to Mrs. B. She looked at me and knew what I was there for. I was determined to convince her I should be in the "good" group. "Why...?" I started."

She gently placed a hand on my shoulder. "I know what you want, Karina," she said, "but your group needs you. I need you to help them get a passing grade on this assignment. Only you can help them."

I was stunned. I was humbled. I was amazed. She had seen something in me I hadn't seen.

"Will you help them?" she asked.

I stood straighter. "Yes," I replied. I could't believe it came out of my mouth, but it did. I had committed.

Passage - II

One miserable rainy night, a man named Mark decided to end his life. In his midfifties, Mark had never been married, had never experienced the joy of having children or spending holidays with his family. Both his parents had been dead for seven years. He had a sister but had lost contact with her. He held a menial job that left him unfulfilled. Wet and unhappy, he walked the streets, feeling as if there was nobody in the entire world that cared if he lived or died.

On that same soggy night, I was sitting in my room watching the rain hit my window. I was six years old, and my life revolved around my Star Wars action figure collection. I was dreaming of the day when I'd have earned enough money to add Darth Vader to my new collector's case. To help me make money, my father paid me to jog with him. Everyday, at seven o'clock, we jogged together.

And everyday, I was fifty cents closer to getting Darth Vader.

When I heard the doorbell ring, I jumped from my chair and raced out of my room to the top of the steps. My mother was already at the door.

Opening it, she found herself face-to-face with a very disheveled-looking man with tears streaming down his face. My mother, overcome by pity, invited the man inside, and he sat with my parents in our living room. Curious, I snuck downstairs so that I could get a better look. I couldn't understand what they were saying, but the sight of the rumpled man, holding his head in his hands and crying, made my chest ache. I raced back upstairs to my room and stuck my hand into my money jar. Pulling out the Kennedy half-dolfar I had earned that day, I ran back downstairs.

When I reached the door of the living room, I walked right in. The three adults looked at me in surprise as I quickly made my way over to the stranger. I put the half-dollar in his hand and told him that I wanted him to have it. Then I gave him a hug and turned and ran as fast as I could out of the room and back up the stairs. I felt embarrassed but happy.

Downstairs, Mark sat quietly with his head bowed. Tears streamed down his face as he tightly clutched that coin. Finally looking up at my parents, he said, "It's just that I thought nobody cared. For the last twenty years, I have been so alone. That was the first hug I have gotten in — I don't know how long. It's hard to believe that somebody cares.

Direction (Q. Nos. 41 to 45): Read the following passage and answer the given questions.

There are two ancient evils that science, unwisely used, may intensify: they are tyranny and war. But I am concerned now rather with pleasant possibilities than with unpleasant ones.

Science can confer two kinds of benefits: It can diminish bad things and it can increase good things. Let us begin with the former.

Science can abolish poverty and excessive hours of labour. In the earliest human communities, before agriculture, each human individual required two or more square miles to sustain life.

Subsistence was precarious and death from starvation must have been frequent.

At that stage, men had the same mixture of misery and carefree enjoyment as still makes up the lives of others animals.

Agriculture was a technical advance of the same kind of importance as attaches to modern machine industry. The way that agriculture was used is an awful warning to our age. It introduced slavery and serfdom, human sacrifice, absolute monarchy and large wars. Instead of raising the standard of life, except for a tiny governing minority, it merely increased the population. On the whole, it probably increased the sum of human misery. It is not possible that industrialism may take the same course.

- 41. Which of the following is NOT the main focus of the article?
 - (A) Tyranny and war
 - (B) Pleasant possibilities of science

- (C) The ability of science to diminish bad things
- (D) The ability of science to increase good things
- 42. According to the article human beings can lessen the quantum of labour if they went back to:
 - (A) Pre-agriculture days
 - (B) If they adopt agricultural economy
 - Use the benefits of science wisely
 - (D) None of the above
- 43. Which of the following statements is true?
 - (A) The condition of human beings
 has been reduced to the status
 of animals during the modern
 age of machine industry
 - (B) Industrialism introduces slavery
 - (C) Agriculture was a technical advancement upon industrialism
 - (b) None of the above

- 44. Agrarian economy increased the sum of human misery because :
 - (A) You have to indulge in the practice of human sacrifice to increase the output
 - (B) It was not used wisely
 - (C) It resulted in population explosion
 - (D) None of the above
- 45. Which of the following is NOT mentioned in the article?
 - (A) Human beings enjoyed the same kind of pleasures and suffered the same kind of misery like the animals during pre-agrarian economy
- (B) Agriculture raised the standard of the life for some human beings
 - (C) Agrarian economy is more scientifically advanced than pre-agrarian economy

Industrialism will lessen human misery because it is accompanied by democratic form of government

Direction (Q. Nos. 46 to 50): Read the following passage and answer the questions given below.

Harnessing the immune system to fight cancer, long a medical dream, is becoming a reality. Remarkable stories of tumours melting away and terminal illness going into remissions that last years — backed by solid data — have led to an explosion of interest and billions of dollars of investments in the rapidly growing field of immunotherapy. Pharmaceutical firms, philanthropists and the U. S. government's "cancer moonshot" program are pouring money into developing treatments. Medical conferences on the topics are packed.

Hundreds of clinical trials involving immunotherapy, alone or combined with other treatments, are underway for nearly every type of cancer.

The immune system — a network of cells, tissues and biochemicals they secrete — defends the body against viruses, bacteria and other invaders. But cancer often finds ways to hide from the immune system or blocks its ability to fight. Immurfotherapy tries to help the immune system to recognize cancer as a threat, and attack it. A widely used type of immunotherapy involves drugs that free immune cells to fight cancer by blocking a mechanism — called a checkpoint — that cancer uses to shut down the immune system. These drugs, called checkpoint inhibitors, have been approved by the Food and Drug Administration to treat advanced melanoma, Hodgkin lymphoma and cancers of the lung, kidney and bladder. More drugs in this class are in the pipeline. Patients are clamouring for checkpoint drugs, including one, Keytruda, which, combined with surgery a radiation, has left the former President value no sign of recurrence even thou melanoma had spread to his liver a brain.

- (B) There is improvement in cancer treatment because billions of dollars are being poured into research
- (C) If melanoma spreads to liver and brain, there will be no recurrence of cancer
- (D) None of the above

- 47. Checkpoint drugs have become very popular because:
 - (A) They nullify cancer's attempt to shut down the immune system
 - (B) You do not have to suffer the pain of surgery and radiation during treatment
 - (C) Food and Drug Administration has approved its use
 - (D) None of the above

48. Keytruda is:

- (A) A particular type of disease with which Jimmy Carter was suffering from
- (B) The name of a drug that is used to treat cancer patients
- (C) Another version of Hodgkin lymphoma
- (D) None of the above

49. Immunotherapy:

- (A) Marks the end of human dependence on drugs during cancer treatment
- Augments the ability of human immune system to fight cancer cells
- (C) Creates 'checkpoints' against cancer cells
- (D) None of the above

Passage - I

I was sitting next to Missy in my ninth-grade world history class when Mrs. Bartlett announced a new project. In groups, we were to create a newspaper around the culture we were studying.

On a piece of paper, we wrote the names of three friends we wanted in our group. After collecting all the requests, Mrs. B informed us that she would take into consideration the names we chose and would let us know the results the next day. I had no doubt I would get the group of my choice. There were only a handful of sociably decent people in the class, and

Missy was one of them. I knew we had chosen each other.

The next day, I anxiously awaited the class. After the bell rang, Missy and I stopped talking as Mrs. B called for our attention. She started to call out names. When she reached group three, Missy's name was called. So I'm in group three, I thought. The second, third and fourth members of the group were called. My name was not included. There had to be some mistake!

Then I heard it. The last group: "Mauro, Juliette, Rachel, Karina." I could feel the tears well in my eyes. How could that went down to her ankles, and the other girl who wore weird clothes. Oh, how badly I wanted to be with my friends.

I fought back tears as I walked up to Mrs. B. She looked at me and knew what I was there for I was determined to convince her I should be in the "good" group. "Why...?" I started.

She gently placed a hand on my shoulder.
"I know what you want, Karina," she said,
"but your group needs you. I need you to help them get a passing grade on this assignment. Only you can help them."

I was stunned. I was humbled. I was amazed. She had seen something in me I hadn't seen.

"Will you help them?" she asked.

I stood straighter. "Yes," I replied. I could't believe it came out of my mouth, but it did. I had committed.

Passage - II

One miserable rainy night, a man named Mark decided to end his life. In his midfifties, Mark had never been married, had never experienced the joy of having children or spending holidays with his family. Both his parents had been dead for seven years. He had a sister but had lost contact with her. He held a menial job that left him unfulfilled. Wet and unhappy, he walked the streets, feeling as if there was nobody in the entire world that cared if he lived or died.

On that same soggy night, I was sitting in my room watching the rain hit my window. I was six years old, and my life revolved around my Star Wars action figure collection. I was dreaming of the day when I'd have earned enough money to add Darth Vader to my new collector's case. To help me make money, my father paid me to jog with him. Everyday, at seven o'clock, we jogged together.

And everyday, I was fifty cents closer to getting Darth Vader.

When I heard the doorbell ring, I jumped from my chair and raced out of my room to the top of the steps. My mother was already at the door.

Opening it, she found herself face-to-face with a very disheveled-looking man with tears streaming down his face. My mother, overcome by pity, invited the man inside, and he sat with my parents in our living room.

Curious, I snuck downstairs so that I could get a better look. I couldn't understand what they were saying, but the sight of the rumpled man, holding his head in his hands and crying, made my chest ache. I raced back upstairs to my room and stuck my hand into my money jar. Pulling out the Kennedy half-dollar I had earned that day, I' ran back downstairs.

When I reached the door of the living room, I walked right in. The three adults looked at me in surprise as I quickly made my way over to the stranger. I put the half-dollar in his hand and told him that I wanted him to have it. Then I gave him a hug and turned and ran as fast as I could out of the room and back up the stairs. I felt embarrassed but happy.

Downstairs, Mark sat quietly with his head bowed. Tears streamed down his face as he tightly clutched that coin. Finally looking up at my parents, he said, "It's just that I (17)
